Week 4

Hello,

The mornings are getting colder and the sun is taking its time coming up over the hill to shine on Kaeo School.

Teachers picketed outside School on Wednesday morning to show solidarity with the rest of New Zealand's teachers. The support was overwhelming from people driving past and from parents and the community. Although this is unlikely to be the end of the disruption, we will keep you fully informed and up to date if there should be any further action.

During Week 9, we will be celebrating Matariki at school. Daily read-arounds after morning tea will take place, we will have speakers coming into school, kappa haka performances, a craft morning and we will finish off with a hangi. More details on this week will be sent home shortly.

Have a wonderful long weekend with your children.

Kind regards,
Debbie Hancock
